After quite successfully made a War Machine pose-able action figure paper model, I decided to give a try on Iron Man Mark VII model. The model is still in 1/6 scale or about 12 inches or 30 cm in height. Learning from previous model, I made a little modification on the template while still using War Machine's helmet as a base. The face from the War Machine can be place on this helmet too. In this release there is no face part yet, I will put that Tony Stark face on the next part (Part 2). As usual I made two version of template, colored one and white one. Due to some PR friends request for providing a PDO file so in this release I include it in the package. There is something new in this release, I try to experiment on the blank template based on suggestion of a PR friend. I made two version of blank template, weathered one and the other is plain white as usual.
